Capital Ale House To Open A Sixth Location In Fairfax, Virginia

RICHMOND, VIRGINIA (September 2019) Ale House Holdings LLC, owner of five Capital Ale House locations throughout Virginia and one Fest Biergarten in Midlothian, Virginia is excited to announce the opening of a new Capital Ale House restaurant at 4069 Chain Bridge Road in Historic Downtown Fairfax, Virginia.

Ale House of Fairfax, LLC, in a licensing agreement with Ale House Holdings, LLC, will operate this newest location owned by Matthew Simmons and Barley Enterprises (Michael and Linda Jones) all current partners in Ale House Holdings.

The location is the historic Barbour House, an early 20th Century mansion built by prominent editor, lawyer, mayor and statesman John Barbour. It is said that in Mr. Barbour's time the house was the center of Fairfax social life and Capital Ale House hopes to carry on that tradition.

"We're thrilled that Capital Ale House has chosen Fairfax City as their next location," said Christopher Bruno, director of economic development for the city. "As Fairfax continues to evolve into a true regional dining center, we've seen a consistent increase in the quality of restaurants and the destinations that they create. Capital Ale House is no exception. Known for excellent local food and phenomenal drinks, Capital Ale House will be a welcome addition to our historic and vibrant Old Town, and Fairfax stands ready to support this exciting new partner."

This new Capital Ale House will feature 100 beers on tap as well as wine, cocktails and an extensive food menu served within two large bar areas and four dining rooms. Planned opening date is early 2020 and the restaurant will employ a staff of 75.

“We currently have Capital Ale Houses located in historic buildings in Downtown Richmond, Fredericksburg and Harrisonburg. We love the charm and character that older buildings add to our concept, so Downtown Fairfax and the Barbour House is a perfect fit for us” said owner and President Matt Simmons.
